There are several methods and strategies that can assist you in writing good articles. What you will find in this guide is the approach, methods, formulas, and ideas I use in write good articles. These methods may or may not help you in improving your writing, but nevertheless should provide you with the tools you need to improve the quality of your writing.

Writing Articles Guide

When writing articles, you have to appeal to what the reader is looking for. And what are most readers looking for online? HELP or NEWS!! When writing articles, try to resolve a problem or provide the latest News.

Types of Articles to write

Solving Problems

- Instructional Articles – provide step by step instructions on how to solve a problem or task
- Information Articles – provide brief information or in-sight on how to solve a problem
- Review Articles – provide user base options, stats, or evaluate scenarios.

News and Gossip

- Latest Gossip – provide information on the latest gossip about events or people
- Political News – provide information from a political fact or opinion

Where do you start?

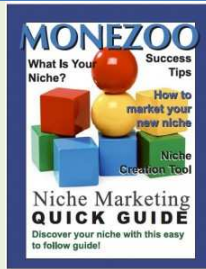

Problem solving articles would be the most easiest to write, because most of the information is easy to gather. News articles can be a little more difficult, usually requiring more research and facts to backup the story. But with both types of articles, you have to use their formula.

News formula: (Who, When, Where, How, and Why or What)
